TO THE BENEVOLENT AND HUMANE.

THE following melancholy case is respectfully submitted to the sympathy of those whom Providence has blest with the means of assisting their distressed fellow-creatures: On Thursday morning last, (the 2nd instant,) Henrietta Brown, 14 years of age, the eldest daughter of William Brown, market-gardener, of Cook's River, while employed about the fire, by some accident part of her clothes caught, and she was immediately enveloped in flames; in that state she ran to her father, who in his endeavours to extinguish the fire, so severely burnt his hands as to be totally disabled from pursuing his labour for the support of his large distressed family, consisting of his wife and seven children, all of whom are entirely dependent on his exertions for support. The unfortunate sufferer only lingered in excruciating agony till the evening of the day on which the accident occurred, when she was relieved from her sufferings by death. Under these circumstances this truly distressed family appeals to the public, in the hope that the hand of benevolence may be held out to assist them in their present forlorn situation. The smallest donations will be thankfully received and gratefully acknowledged.

Mr. Tunks, Bathurst-street, has consented to receive contributions. 640

TO THE GENTLEMEN OF NEW ENGLAND AND DARLING DOWNS DISTRICTS.

WE, the undersigned, most heartily return thanks for the kindness that has been shown to our parties while pursuing the notorious Wilson and his gang, and we beg that whatever subscription there may be raised, as has been proposed by the Gentlemen of the above-named districts, may be forwarded with due submission either to Captain Nicholson, Commandant Mounted Police, Sydney, or to Lieutenant Gall, Commanding Mounted Police, Jerry's Plains, and we further trust that should a party ever exist again in those districts or any other we may be enabled to put them down with as little delay as possible as those have been, as in duty bound so to do.

EDWARD GILES, Serjeant Mounted Police.
ROBERT WORSLEY, Corporal Mounted Police.

TO SETTLERS, SQUATTERS, HOLDERS AND PURCHASERS OF LAND.

Survey and Land Agency Office, No. 7, Macquarie-street, Sydney.

GENTLEMEN,—It has been suggested to me, that persons residing in the country, who are desirous of purchasing country lands, town or suburban allotments or of obtaining occupation or squatting licenses, might avoid the inconvenience and expense of a visit to Sydney, as well as great delay, if an agency for transactions of this kind (which has been long wanted) were established in Sydney. I beg therefore to offer my services.

What I propose is, that the party should describe the spot to me as accurately as his knowledge of the locality will allow, that I should then inspect the Government maps, obtain all the information requisite to enable him to identify the land, submit his application for purchase or license in the proper form, watch the progress of the application, attend the sale, bid for the land (the funds being provided) and obtain the deed of grant or license, and thus complete the business.

I am willing previously to visit any particular spots, (should it be important to have them carefully defined), and report upon their advantages.

The numerous inquiries which are made by letter at the Surveyor General's Office respecting lands, roads, boundaries, &c., could be much better made by an experienced Surveyor in Sydney, acting as agent, who (being at head quarters) would enquire into the actual state of a case, and promptly reply to the applicant. By this means, a great deal of correspondence would be avoided, and in many instances much embarrassment prevented.

I shall also be happy to accompany settlers, or others to the Surveyor General's Office who may wish to be assisted in searching the maps, and to have their attention directed to the best localities.

In one particular especially I may render service to persons desirous of investing capital in land, which is in making a selection from those portions that have been put up by Government, but not being sold, are still open for purchase at the upset price, many of them being extremely valuable. In fact, I propose to act as an agent in every matter connected with the sale or holding of land from the Government.

I now take the liberty of recommending to you, invariably to have a reduced plan of any land you may purchase, attached to the conveyance, as it materially assists the description, and may prove invaluable to those to whom it may descend; and before accepting any conveyance, or completing a mortgage, to have the description of the locality, boundaries, abuttals, area, &c., examined by an experienced and competent Surveyor. The colony abounds with vague and erroneous descriptions, which have passed from deed to deed.

As many are now improving their Sydney property, and erecting substantial buildings, I submit to them also, the propriety of having their boundaries first carefully compared with their deeds of grant. The alignment in the front may be easily ascertained, but the other boundaries require greater attention, and are too often disregarded, whereby great risk is run.

I cannot refrain from taking the present opportunity of acknowledging the kind preference great numbers have shown me ever since I began my profession as Land Surveyor, in Sydney, in 1832. I hope still to retain their patronage, as I shall continue to act on the principle with which I commenced, and shall conduct my surveys, both in town and country, with the same care; particularly in cases of lost or disputed boundaries, or when acting as arbitrator respecting them.

In order to meet the present times, my intention is, in every branch of my employment, to make so moderate a charge (which may always be known beforehand at my office), that it cannot be objected to by any one; and to supply plain and neat plans.

I have the honour to be,
Gentlemen,
Your obedient servant,
JOHN ARMSTRONG,
Formerly Surveyor to the Australian Agricultural Company.

All letters must be post paid. 619

REAL WEST OF ENGLAND BROADCLOTHS, CASSIMERES, FINE WOOL TWEEDS, &c.

MESSRS. PITE AND PRESTON solicit the attention of their customers and the public to their having just received an assortment of materials of a very superior description, which have been selected in England expressly for themselves and are in all respects suitable for a tailoring trade of the

FIRST ORDER.

The medley cloths, viz., olives, olive browns, browns, and claret browns, which are now so are of the finest possible texture, and the most beautiful shades of colour. The black, blue, and invisible green cloths, as well as the wool-dyed black cassimeres, &c., are of the same superior make; it is therefore with increased pleasure and confidence that the proprietors of this establishment solicit the orders of gentlemen who have been accustomed to have their clothing from first-rate houses at home, and they pledge themselves that the cut, quality, and workmanship of clothes made by them shall be in all respects equal to anything that can be obtained in London or Paris.

Their stock of rich brocaded and black satin and velvet vestings is of the same order as the cloths, &c, and a suit of clothes can at all times be made to measure in TEN HOURS.

Tailors can be supplied with black, white, drab, and straw silesias.
Black casban shalloons and interlinings
New bronze, sporting, and flexible buttons
Silk twist, tape, measures, &c., &c.

VESSEL IN HARBOUR.—June 30. Mary, Levens, master, about to proceed to Sydney.

The Emma has made a very excellent passage from Adelaide, having left there on the 2nd instant and arrived at her anchorage in the Cove yesterday, at 5½ A.M. She passed a cutter off Moonlight Head on the 4th instant, supposed to be the Roseanna, hence for Adelaide. On the 6th passed a schooner, name unknown, about seventy miles south-west of Cape Howe, steering to the westward.

The Dorset has been detained during her passage from Adelaide by light winds, which she experienced shortly after leaving that port She saw a brig off Kent's Group on Sunday last at noon, supposed to be the William for Launceston; and the same evening saw two brigs and a schooner about thirty miles west of Cape Howe.

The Castle Eden from Sydney was entering Calcutta as the Tenasserim was leaving on the 27th February.

The City of Sydney reports the schooner Shamrock, from Sydney, going up the Tamar as she was leaving. Neither the brigs William nor Calypso had arrived at Launceston on the 4th instant. The schooner John Bull was to leave Launceston on the 5th instant for Sydney. The City of Sydney saw the schooner Catherine on the 6th instant, at 4 P.M., forty miles east of Kent's Group, hence for Launceston. A new brig called the Peri was to sail from Launceston for Sydney about the 6th instant.

The brig Bee, hence, arrived at Newcastle on Monday night, and was taking in cattle for New Zealand on Wednesday.

The Tamar left last evening for Moreton Bay, with 40 steerage passengers on board, who have been afforded a free passage, in order to increase the number of labourers in that district. The expenses will be defrayed by private parties in Moreton Bay.

The ship Marion, Captain Kettlewell, from Calcutta, with rice, arrived at Mauritius on the 16th March.

The barque Phœbe, Captain Dale, left Adelaide for London on the 15th June. The schooner Ghika, 122 tons, Captain Trowde, arrived at Adelaide from the Cape of Good Hope on the 20th ultimo. Passenger—Mr. Dixie. Cargo: 10 pipes, 30 half-pipes, 60 quarter-pipes, 40 half-aums Cape madeira, 30 quarter-pipes, 30 half-aums pontac, 20 half-aums hock, 20 ankers vinegar, 300 boxes raisins, 40 boxes peaches, 34 boxes apricots, 26 boxes apples, 20 sacks almonds, 100 chests and 360 boxes tea, 100 bags rice, 50 bags pepper, 4 bales corn sacks, 3 bales shirting, 3 cases slops, 1 case boots, 20 bags acorns, 11 boxes candles, 1 kit salmon, 2 bundles whipsticks, 101 coils coir rope.

DREADFUL GALE ENCOUNTERED BY THE "MARIA SOMES."—The distressing events that attended the accidents the Maria Somes, transport, encountered in the hurricane of the end of March, and the unfortunate loss of the lives of several individuals on board, have led us to make more than an usual inquiry of what took place; and we have been obligingly furnished with authentic notes, which enable us to give the following details. The above vessel left Ceylon on 12th March, with 318 men of the 90th Regiment on board. On the 24th March, there were indications of bad weather; on the 25th it blew a strong gale with heavy squalls, rain, and lightning; on the 26th the weather became worse, the squalls were terrific, the ship laboured very much, and was hove to under a close-reefed mizen topsail and mizen trysail. At the latter part of this day, the gale increased to a perfect hurricane, attended with rain and lightning to the eastward, the sails were split and replaced by a tarpaulin in the mizen rigging, and the pumps were kept constantly going. On the 27th, the weather assumed a more favourable appearance, although violent, but the barometer remained at 28·50 On the 28th, the gale increased, and the vessel was hove to with her head to the S.S.W., wind at W., veering to the N.; every thing was made as secure as possible. At three in the afternoon the vessel was thrown on her beam ends by a terrific gale, a tremendous sea driving over her; the squall over, she afterwards righted, and rode the gale remarkably well, but it recommenced with redoubled fury; the two foremast futtock shrouds of the main topmast rigging gave way in the heavy roll, and the sea struck the ship, when the main topmast went about five feet above the cap, dragging over with it the fore and mizen topmasts and gib-boom close off at the caps, with the topsail yards; shortly afterwards the main top capsized; an endeavour was made to clear the wreck, but it was found impossible to clear that of the main topmast, owing to the chain topsail tie and sheets being fast about the main top. Lieutenant Boys, the ship's agent, was struck down in the attempt, and was much hurt, the carpenter tried to cut the chain, but owing to the violent rolling of the vessel could not succeed, and it was useless to try to go aloft. The wreck was torn away by the violence of the weather during the night. The following morning (29th) it blew a dreadful hurricane, the hatches were obliged to be battened down fore and aft. The pumps were sounded but without effect At 9 A.M the larboard quarter gallery and the after dead lights were washed away; these openings were secured with mattresses, hammocks, and battens The pumps were sounded and there was five feet of water in the hold. The ship was pumped as well as the weather would permit, but the men were often driven from the pumps At 2 o'clock in the morning of the 29th, the hurricane still continued to rage with dreadful fury. The wind changed from N.W. to N. and back to W. During this time the troops being in the hold, were suffocating for want of air and water, and it became necessary to open the after hatch which was watched by a party of men to keep the tarpaulin over it. About daylight the agent's gig was blown up into the mizen rigging, and eventually blown away from the quarter, with spars, oars, &c. The decks were swept by a tremendous sea, carrying away binnacles, hen coops, ladders, provisions, casks, &c. The larboard quarter boat was driven to pieces by the wind and sea. The heels of the fore and main topmasts having worked out of the fids, were blown overboard to leeward, the mizen topmast during a weather roll fell through the poop deck into the cuddy and was secured on deck. No provisions or water could be procured during the whole of this time, and the reports from the lower decks were dreadful, as some of those who were there were dying from suffocation At three in the afternoon, the starbord quarter gallery and part of the agent's cabin was washed away, the sea making a clean breach through the cuddy, where the whole of the passengers, ladies, &c., were assembled, expecting every moment to be their last. At 4 o'clock the fore-top capsized, and the fore-yard having been carried away, the lift braces and yard with lashings to the mast tore up part of the forecastle deck and rails before it could be secured by the Captain and the few hands who could work, part of them being paralized by fear. The lee bulwarks and guns were washed overboard. During the night the hurricane moderated, and two hammocks and a tarpaulin were spead in the mizen rigging to keep the vessel to the wind. It was now found that she had sprung a leak, and that there was five feet of water in the hold; the pumps were kept constantly going, and the troops exerted themselves in the most praiseworthy manner, although frequently washed away from them, and faint from hunger. The main mast and rigging straining the ship so much it was decided to cut it away, it was accordingly done without any injury. The hatches were at length opened; thirteen individuals were found suffocated, one sergeant, six men, one woman, and five children. Many of the soldiers were now allowed to come on deck, but without any shelter, as the cuddy was filled with passengers who were in a deplorable state of exhaustion. The vessel not answering the helm, the rudder was examined, and the head was found to be wrung off; the captain, carpenter, and four men, used all their efforts to repair it, and only partly succeeded At one o'clock next day the weather was still very violent, with a heavy rolling sea, and the pumps were kept constantly at work. The long boat being full of water broke adrift, taking with her the spars lashed to the ring bolts, tearing one of them out from the deck. Every effort was made by Mr. Skey, second mate, in the absence of the captain and first mate, who were both disabled, to secure the boat and spars, and four soldiers had their legs and thighs broken in the attempt The next day (the 31st) the spars were secured, but both boats were shattered to pieces In endeavouring to clean the deck of the lumber, &c., the captain and a man (Peter Preston) were swept under it, and when removed from that perilous situation, the former was found to be much bruised, and the latter had his leg broken just above the instep. Several severe accidents happened during the day among the troops. The barometer had risen from 28 20, its lowest during the bad weather, to 29 30, and the gale gradually subsided. The vessel, however, still continued to make from 12 to 14 inches per hour. The rudder had been washed away. Port Louis being the nearest port, it was decided to steer for it. It was judged to be about 1250 miles distant W. by S. By the observations made on board the 31st, the latitude was 17·5 S., and longitude, 7·07 E. From this date the Maria Somes continued her course for this port, and anchored here on the 18th instant.—Mauricien, April 22.

NORFOLK ISLAND.

THE Launceston papers contain accounts from this settlement up to the latter part of May, which are of a gloomy character.

The sultriness of the weather had occasioned considerable indisposition amongst the civil residents. The number of prisoners on the island was 1800, of them about 200 are the most reckless and abandoned of characters, and in consequence of a laxity of discipline on the part of the civil authorities, were in a state of general insubordination. An outbreak had occurred, which was only prevented from becoming serious by the determined conduct of the officer commanding the detachment of the 11th Regiment on duty, who was on the occasion called upon by the Civil Commandant to exercise his authority. During the month of February the prisoners were very insubordinate, and on the 25th of that month above 800 of the worst of them assembled, locked themselves up in the Lumber Yard, refused to work, and defied the authority of their superintendents. The Stipendiary Magistrate and Civil Commandant being unsuccessful in their attempts to enforce obedience, called in the military. Major HAROLD, at the head of a strong detachment of the 11th, then called upon them to go to work. This order being disobeyed, the gate was forced in, and the military being marched in took up proper positions. The MAJOR then called upon them, in the name of the QUEEN, to go to work immediately, or force would be used. An attempt was made to hold a parley, which was abruptly broken off by the officer informing them that if they did not at once evacuate the place, he would fire upon them; at the same moment, he gave the word 'ready' to the men under his command, and the click of about sixty muskets coming to position, recalled the insurgents to a sense of their danger, and they hastily left the yard and went to work.

VAN DIEMEN'S LAND.

BY the arrival of the City of Sydney from Launceston, we have papers to the 1st July. Great indignation appeared to have been excited by the receipt of a despatch of Sir EARDLEY WILMOT, to Lord STANLEY, which was ordered to be printed by the House of Commons, the subject of which was the "Transportation Petition," forwarded from the colony, and recently presented to Parliament by Mr. EWART. Sir EARDLEY WILMOT's despatch impugns most of the statements made in the petition, and strongly eulogises the Probation System. The signatures attached to the petition, are thus alluded to by the LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR: "While a few of the persons who signed that petition are respectable and conscientious men, most of them never read it, and would be ready to sign any thing." The petition in question contained the signatures of about forty magistrates, most of the merchants, bankers, landholders, and professional men of the community. A petition to HER MAJESTY's Government, praying for the recal of Sir EARDLEY WILMOT was advocated by some portion of the press.

The papers state that news had been received, via Port Phillip, that some time previously to his resignation, Lord STANLEY had written a despatch to Sir EARDLEY WILMOT, proposing that the Home Government should contribute £24,000 to the police expenses of the colony. This document had been sent to Sir JAMES GRAHAM for approval, but had been kept back by him until the transportation petition was presented, when it was alluded to; and it was further stated that in the same despatch it was proposed by Lord STANLEY to establish a new penal settlement in the neighbourhood of Moreton Bay; and with a view to relieve Van Diemen's Land, all the best conducted prisoners were to be sent there from Van Diemen's Land, as also most, if not all, of the female convicts, so that the evils arising from the great disproportion of sexes may be prevented in the new settlement." We expect this is only a new edition of Lord STANLEY's new penal settlement speculation, which we have before noticed.

The Legislative Council met on the 30th of June, but the Launceston papers do not contain any report of the opening speech of the GOVERNOR. Messrs. ORR and ALLISON were sworn in.

Mr. ALLISON enquired if HIS EXCELLENCY had received any despatches respecting the payment of police expenses, to which HIS EXCELLENCY replied, that he had received all Lord STANLEY's despatches to the beginning of December, and also Mr. GLADSTONE's to the beginning of February, but they were silent on the subject.

The Lord Bishop of TASMANIA had given the munificent donation of £1000 towards the endowment of the College and Grammar School at Hobart Town and Launceston. The subscription already exceeds £8000.

SOUTH AUSTRALIA.

ON Tuesday, the 24th of June, the Legislative Council of the province of South Australia was opened by His Excellency Lieutenant-Governor ROBE.

As this was the first time HIS EXCELLENCY had met the Council, the occasion was looked forward to with some interest, and a large number of respectable colonists were present.

The speech of HIS EXCELLENCY appears to have given considerable satisfaction as far as it goes, though its silence on the subject of the "Royalties Imposition" and the discontinuance of special surveys, is looked on with some suspicion. With these two exceptions the tone of the address is frank and cordial. After congratulating the Council on the rapid advances of the colony towards prosperity, he proceeds to state that the ordinary revenues of the province have been sufficient to defray all appropriations for the maintenance of the Civil Government, to execute some urgent repairs, and to liquidate a portion of the debt incurred by the issue of Debentures. The prosperous state of the Land Fund, in connexion with the revival of Immigration is also alluded to, as well as the necessity for extensive public works, and impressive mention is made of the great deficiency in the provision from the Colonial Revenues for the purposes of religion and religious instruction.

The speech concludes with an assurance to one and all of the members, that HIS EXCELLENCY "will value their judgment on all matters, the more from a consciousness that it is unfettered; and, whether it be in accordance with his own views or not, he should ever be ready to ascribe to them sincerity of motives, in the hope that they would extend the same indulgence to him."

It is rumoured that the local Executive has determined in refusing any more special surveys until they have heard from the Home Government. This measure is generally unpopular, but is defended on the ground that the continuance of the special surveys would, by the absorbtion of too much capital, tend to a commercial crisis; besides, that it would be hardly fair that a few great capitalists should get mineral lands at £1 per acre, while the bulk of the colonists have to pay from £30 to £90. As the proceeds of such lands are appropriated to immigration and public improvements, the greater amount realised from them, consistent with their real value, the better for the colony. The purchasers, however, argue that as most of the land bought by them is worth nothing, they cannot be said to have given £1 per acre only for their mineral lands.

The proceedings of the Criminal Court, which had just finished its sittings, exhibited a considerable increase in crime—attributed in some degree to the contamination of the Van Diemen's Land connexion.

A sale of Crown lands in the vicinity of the Kapunda Mines realised the amount of £30,081 1s.; the quantity sold was 2804 acres. Particulars of the sale will be found in another part of our paper. Two special surveys of 20,000 acres each had also been taken up, which would furnish an additional accession to the land fund of £40,000. The amount of deposit paid in the Kapunda land sale was £3008, being £212 more than the upset price of the land.

The mining speculations were progressing favourably, and the lode on the Victoria mine contains gold, which it was said had been lost, was re-found.

MAURITIUS—CAPE OF GOOD HOPE.

WE yesterday received tolerably complete files of Mauritius papers to the 11th May inclusive.

The papers of April contain little of any interest. There was an extensive fire on the 21st of that month, in which stores near the Custom House, and property in them, were destroyed to the value of 100,000 dollars; and on the 24th of the same month, an American whaler, the Francis, Captain TABER, of New Bedford, with 300 barrels oil on board, was totally destroyed by fire. The origin of the fire on shore is not known, but the fire which destroyed the Francis is attributed to the acts of three seamen belonging to her, who had been taken before the police authorities, and, after punishment, returned by those authorities to their ships.

In the Mauricien of the 4th May, we find a "Commercial Retrospect of the month of April," from which we take some extracts, and have made an abstract of other portions. The Mauricien says—

This month has been very favourable for the plantations, and accounts received from the different districts are very auspicious for the ensuing crop. Heavy rains have occasionally fallen, followed by warm sunny days, which have forced the vegetation very much. All danger from hurricanes being now over, the next crop may be fairly estimated at 120 million pounds or 60,000 tons. Expectations are raised as to a change in the system of immigration, which is now all that is required to make the colony prosper, and the answer of the new Secretary of State is looked forward to with anxiety. The present expenses on estates are augmented by the high price of provisions, nor has the rate of wages yet diminished.

* * * *

The 15th half-yearly statement of the Commercial Bank, to 10th of last month, announces that the amount of notes in circulation is 77,205 dollars that there is 261,385 38 dollars of specie in chest, that the balance in favour of the Bank is 412,158,57, and that the profits realised during the six months are 4·43 per cent.

And with respect to Sugar, the staple export, the same paper goes on to say,

The shipments have been considerable, but transactions have been small, as the principal part shipped had been previously purchased and was remaining in store. There are buyers, but scarcely any sugar is offered for public sale. The crop drawing to a close, good parcels are rare, and the demand remains unsatisfied. Prices are as near as possible the same as last month. Sirops are in demand for the Cape, and last month's prices have been fully maintained

The quantity shipped to 31st March is stated to have been 84,428,697 lbs., and in April 6,658,869 lbs., or "shipped of the present crop to 30th April" 91,087,566 lbs.; at the same time in 1845, the exports amounted to 74,188,103 lbs. There were at this time four vessels loading, two for London, one for Greenock, and one for Cork; the quantity on board was 1,151,543 lbs.; and it was estimated that there were about 5,700,000 lbs. in store, which would make with the quantity exported already, and in ships in harbour 98 millions of lbs., or 49,000 tons.

The imports for the quarter ending 5th April, 1846, are stated to have been, in British ships, to the amount of £197,697 3s. 2d.; Australia is put down for £9659 6s. 2d.; in Foreign ships, £4493 7s. 9d.; total imports for the quarter, £202,491 10s. 11d. The exports for the same quarter are stated at £453,091 5s. 10d.; and the export to Australia is stated at £15,175 5s.

It has been unusual of late to receive any Mauritius papers not containing later Indian news than had previously come to hand, but we are at this receipt in possession of later news than the Mauritius papers had received.

With respect to the Cape of Good Hope, although there is not any later intelligence as to actual movements on the part of the British Government than we have received—and which we gave in the announcement of the fact, that Sir PEREGRINE MAITLAND had himself proceeded to the borders to superintend the military operations; yet the Mauritius papers have the proclamation in which open hostility was declared, and which was caused by the continued aggressions of the Kafirs. This proclamation was issued after the last date included in our regular file, and previous to the date of the stray paper which we were favoured with via Port Phillip.

After alluding at some length to the treaties which had been entered into, and the numerous instances in which the Kafirs had violated them, the proclamation concludes thus:—

But the last great outrage has been of such a nature as to prove that hostility to the colony is deeply rooted and widely spread,—to show beyond all further doubt or question, the point to which the chiefs and people have been for some time tending, and to make it the imperative duty of the Colonial Government to punish the delinquent parties in such a manner as to crush the hopes of all those in Kafirland who look forward to enrich themselves by war and plunder.

A Kafir, who had committed a crime,—not in Kafirland but in the colony,—was apprehended at Fort Beaufort, and, in the common course of law, sent to Graham's Town for trial A number of armed Kafirs burst into the colony, attacked the persons in charge of the prisoner, rescued him by force, and then cruelly murdered and mutilated a colonist, to whom the culprit had been fastened for security.

This was an outrage of unprecedented but significant atrocity, and one which the chiefs of the perpetrators were bound to use every effort in their power to punish with severity. Those chiefs were the petty chief Tola, his immediate superior Botman, and the paramount chief Sandilla. To each of these chiefs a formal message was sent, demanding that they should take measures to secure the murderers of the colonist, and restore the prisoner rescued. This demand was not complied with by any of these chiefs; but on the contrary, was denied or disputed on the most frivolous pretences. The chiefs say that the treaties did not require Kafirs to be sent to Graham's Town for such thefts as that which the Kafir in question had committed, and that the Colonial Magistrate did wrong in sending him. But the chiefs well know the distinction between Kafir thieves apprehended while in the colony, and those who are taken beyond the boundary, and know as well, that with the former, the treaties have not, nor ever had any concern whatever. Again;—the chiefs say that as one of the attacking party was shot by a constable, the killing of the innocent colonist is balanced, and must not be carried further; though the chiefs well know that their countryman was killed whilst in the act of committing a great crime in rescuing a prisoner out of the hands of justice—whilst the colonist was put to death without any just cause. By their conduct in this instance, connected as it obviously is with the chain of circumstances already mentioned, Sandilla, Botman, and Tola have proved themselves to be confederate with each other,—with the lawless men who broke into the colony upon the occasion referred to,—with (as is upon good grounds believed) other chiefs whose hostility has not made itself so openly manifest—and with the war party prevalent throughout Kafirland. To punish these chiefs and their confederates, and to crush, as far as possible, the Kafir war party in general, is the first necessity now imposed upon the Government. When that painful task shall have been performed, it will become my further duty to consider by what means additional protection may best be given to the colonists and to the peaceable and well disposed among the Kafir tribes themselves. The mutual responsibility of the chiefs for their followers, and of the followers of their chiefs, as well as the necessity of dealing with the Kafirs, in some respects, as one nation cannot be abandoned without depriving that people of the character of an organised community capable of entering into stipulations by treaty, and, at the same time, exposing the colony to evils against which it is the duty of the Government to guard.

In order that the views taken by the Government of the recent events upon the frontier, and of the general course of conduct which they suggest, may be understood, I have, as already intimated, caused this statement to be published.

There is no other matter of importance alluded to in our papers.

LAW INTELLIGENCE.

CENTRAL CRIMINAL COURT.

THURSDAY.

BEFORE His Honor Mr. Justice DICKINSON.

HORSE-STEALING.

William Stamford, late of Sydney, labourer, was arraigned upon two several charges of horse stealing, the first offence having been committed on the 29th of May last, and the second on the 3rd of June last. The prisoner pleaded guilty to both charges, and it appeared that there was a third information upon the file against him for stealing a saddle.

His HONOR sentenced the prisoner to be transported for twenty years; ten years for each offence.

FORGERY.

William Cummings, late of Bathurst, gentleman, was indicted for having, on the 4th of March, 1839, forged a promissory note for £1170, payable three years after date, and purporting to have been made by William Cummings, Thomas Cummings, and Jeremiah Grant, in favour of William Henry Mackenzie. There were eight counts in the information, wherein the offence was variously set forth, the prisoner being charged both with forging and uttering the note, and the intent being variously laid as an intent to defraud William Henry Mackenzie, and an intent to defraud Jeremiah Grant.

The prisoner pleaded not guilty, and having given bail for his appearance at the next Criminal Session; himself being bound in the sum of £200, and two sureties for £100 each, was discharged.

CATTLE-STEALING.

James Walsh was indicted for having, at Kurrajong on the 8th of March, stolen a bull, the property of John Hand.

The prisoner pleaded not guilty, and was defended by Mr PUREFOY.

The prisoner had been tried on Wednesday for stealing a cow, the property of Hand, the present prosecutor; and the evidence given in support of the present charge was the same as that which had been given in proof of the former one, as reported in yesterday's Herald. The case for the Crown rested mainly, as before, upon the evidence of Hand, and of his stockman Edney, who stated that they had seen the stolen animal alive at the prisoner's place on one day, and in a few days afterwards had found the hide there; the animal having in the mean time been slaughtered. The evidence of these witnesses was in some degree confirmed by that of Serjeant Ellis of the Mounted Police, but their testimony was very contradictory upon many points, although they joined in swearing positively to the hide.

Mr. PUREFOY addressed the Jury at considerable length, commenting strongly upon the contradictory and unsatisfactory nature of the evidence for the Crown, and contending that such evidence would in no case warrant a conviction

His HONOR having summed up, the Jury, after a few minutes' consideration, acquitted the prisoner, who was discharged.

The Court was then adjourned until nine o'clock this morning.

DOMESTIC INTELLIGENCE.

INSOLVENCY PROCEEDINGS.

THURSDAY.

BEFORE the CHIEF COMMISSIONER.

MEETINGS HELD.

In the estate of Peek and Campbell, a special meeting was held, at which Robert Law Scrutton, on behalf of D. Jones and Co., directed the trustees to realise the landed properties belonging to the estate in such way as might to them appear the most advantageous.

In the estate of Robert Smeales, a special meeting was held, at which the assignees of J. J. Peacock claimed to prove for £1, which was not allowed by the Commissioner, the debt having been contracted eight or nine years ago.

MEETINGS FOR TO-DAY.

John Longfield, a single meeting, at half-past ten o'clock.

John Terry Hughes, a special meeting, at eleven.

There were no meetings fixed for to-morrow.

IMPORT OF WOOL INTO ENGLAND.

* The weight of Colonial is full 23,000,000 lbs.

† Of this increase, 17,000 Bales of 81 lbs. each, are from the West Coast of South America, and more than 4,000 from the United States.

The import of colonial wool is now in weight decidedly in advance of that from Germany, and will continue to increase. The wools from New Holland, Van Diemen's Land, and the Cape have arrived in 1845, in better condition, and of more healthy growth than in former years. Their consumption is gradually spreading throughout the West of England, and in Scotland; and they will doubtless ere long, be used there to as great a comparative extent as they have been in Yorkshire for many years. To continue them in the estimation of the manufacturers, however, will require the constant care and attention of the growers, as they will assuredly have to meet a strong competition from the Russian wools for clothing, and from the United States for combing purposes.

The increase of Cape wool this year is full 55 per cent. over last year; the quality continues to improve, but much still remains to be done in the proper assortment of the fleeces before packing. Even by an unpractised eye, a selection of the coarse from the fine is easily made. The latter remark applies also to those from the United States.

The trade in German wool has been rather unsatisfactory throughout the year. In most cases the high prices paid at the fairs have not been realised here. The stock compared to the demand, is considerable, more particularly of wools from 2s. 6d. upwards Lower qualities have been much dearer in comparison; and it must be borne in mind that the scarcity of low priced German wools (from the increasing consumption of their own manufacturers), has been a principal cause of firmness to the prices of colonial wool.

Russian Merino has been imported to a considerable extent, and would have been to a much larger, but for the demand direct from France, Belgium, and the United States. At present little is doing, but the prices are steady.

Of Spanish, the import has been a mere bagatelle, having rapidly declined from the position it once held of first on the list, being superseded for most purposes by colonial.

TAHITI.

ONE of the South Sea Missionaries suggests, that the Christian Ladies of Britain and its dependencies, should memorialise or petition the Governments of France and England, or her Majesty Queen Victoria and Louis Philippe, in behalf of the suffering Tahitians. He has addressed letters on the subject to H R H the Duchess of Kent, and the ladies of England. The following are extracts from the letter to her Royal Highness.

I have seen Tahiti under all the different phases it has presented, from the time when its people were living in peace and happiness, independent of foreign control, in the full enjoyment of their civil and religious privileges, down to the present moment, when all is confusion, distrust, and anarchy, both on the part of the natives and of foreign residents. But the greatest of all the many causes of grief is, that warlike passions are again enkindled in the breasts of the natives, and that missionary operations, and the useful pursuits of peaceful times, are almost entirely suspended. After a long-continued truce, the French, in January last, made the most wanton attacks on two of the leeward islands—Huahine and Borabora, where much property and the lives of some of the natives, and between two and three hundred French lives, have been sacrificed; and this while the British and French Governments were mutually inquiring whether these islands (as not being included in the dominions of Pomare) ought to be included in the (so called) Protectorate or not.

With regard to the Protectorate, Your Royal Highness ought to know that it consists of the control of the harbour at Papeite by a strong French naval force, and the occupation of a shred of land about two miles long by one broad, skirting the harbour, and defended partly by the vessels at anchor, and partly by a line of block-houses on the hills and the French troops on shore.

They have also a block-house and two or three guns on Point Venus, six or eight miles to the eastward. All the rest of the island is in possession of the natives. * * * * * * It cannot be too often repeated that Queen Pomare and her people have never voluntarily acceded to any Protectorate whatever, much less to an armed occupation. She is now an exile, 100 miles away, and has had to work with her own hands, as have also her husband and family, for their subsistence. She has also been obliged to forward to the Sandwich Islands for sale the carriage kindly sent out to her by Her Most Gracious Majesty Queen Victoria.

Although it has been officially communicated to her more than once that the British Government cannot interfere in her behalf, so far as the Protectorate at Tahiti is concerned, yet she clings to the hope that her old friend Britain will assist her. And I will not conceal from Your Royal Highness the opinion, which, in common with millions I entertain, that Britain ought to assist her.

And she and her friends are naturally disposed to appeal for assistance to any and every quarter whence useful influence in their favour may be deemed likely to emanate. Hence it is that I presume to address Your Royal Highness, believing that, either as an individual, or at the head of the ladies of England, your Royal Highness might render very efficient aid. From some considerable influence with the Islands, the Queen, and the missions here, I can assure Your Royal Highness that the case well deserves the sympathy and help for which the present appeal is made. The names of "Britain," and its beloved Queen, "Victoria," are ever on the lips of the natives; and I trust their attachment, and confidence, and earnest appeals, will not be met by cold indifference or merely passive compassion.

CITY COUNCIL.—We are requested to state that the City Council meets at twelve o'clock to-day, and not at three as usual.

POLICE MAGISTRATES.—Very considerable inconvenience has been experienced of late in consequence of the paucity of police magistrates, and the non-attendance of the few gentlemen who hold the police commission, and the inconvenience is felt especially by the shipping interest. The number of police magistrates for Sydney is only three—Mr. Superintendent Miles, Mr. Windeyer, and Alderman Allen;—the latter has not acted of late, indeed—since his mayoralty expired—believing that the police commission was issued to him merely as chief magistrate of the city. Within the last few days, however, Alderman Allen has received official intimation that his commission as police magistrate was not intended to bear reference only to his mayoralty, but was considered a perpetual commission; and in consequence of this intimation the portion of the public requiring the attendance of a second police magistrate will be relieved from the inconveniences to which of late they have been subjected.

ADELAIDE RAILWAY.—An advertisement appears in the Adelaide papers, announcing that the Committee of Management of the proposed Railway Company from Adelaide to the Port, have received instructions from the Provisional Directors in London to receive applications for shares; and His Excellency the Governor having expressed his readiness to permit the introduction of a Bill into the Legislative Council for the formation of such a railway, they give notice that they are now prepared to receive applications for shares, for transmission to the Provisional Directors, accompanied by a deposit of £2 per share. The Adelaide Committee consist of the Hon. Jacob Hagen, M L C., the Hon. John Morphett, M.L C., Charles Beck, Esq., George Morphett, Esq., and E. L. Montefiore, Esq. The capital of the Company is £100,000, in 5000 shares of £20 each; of which 1000 are reserved for the colony. Our southern friends will have a railway before we shall, if the colonists do not take the matter up more warmly than they at present seem inclined to do.

SALE OF MINERAL LANDS IN SOUTH AUSTRALIA.—On the 13th June, a sale of Crown Lands, surrounding the Kapunda mine in South Australia, was held at Adelaide, which as far as the sum realised goes, is we believe the most important one that has taken place in any of these colonies since Lord Stanley's Waste Land Act came into operation. The average price given was higher than the wild lands of Australia ever before fetched. The first section, consisting of 80 acres, realised £7100, or about £90 an acre—another section fetched £60 an acre, and others to £20 to £30 an acre. The total quantity of land sold was 2804 acres, and the total amount realized was £30,081 1s. The sale was mainly contested by the representatives of three interests, Captain Bagot on the part of the Kapunda Copper Mine Company, Messrs. Anstey, Collier, Stocks, and Todd—on behalf of a number of colonists who had associated before the sale, to be formed into a company to be called the Grand Junction Mines Association of South Australia, and Mr. James Chambers, on behalf of Messrs. Edward Stephens and G. F. Aston. Messrs. Anstey and others purchased 1706 acres at an average price of £12 2s. an acre, amounting to £20,718. Captain Bagot, 998 acres, at an average price of £6 7s. 5d., amounting to £6358 1s. Messrs. Stephens and Aston 100 acres, at £30 an acre, amounting to £3005.

"THE VOICE IN THE WILDERNESS."—We have to acknowledge the receipt of several numbers of a small fortnightly publication, bearing the title of The Voice in the Wilderness. It is a small quarto, neatly printed, and is the organ of those Presbyterians who belong to the Synod of Australia, but are anxious to have alterations made which will enable members of the Free Church, as well as those of the established Church of Scotland, to be members of the Synod.

STEALING FROM A CLOTHES CHEST.—Between Monday and Wednesday last, a clothes chest belonging to Thomas Russell, a shipwright, at present residing in Hughes-buildings, Lower George-street, was opened by means of a false key, and a £5 note, three £1 notes, and five half-crowns, stolen out of it.

REMOVAL OF A PUBLICAN'S LICENSE.—Yesterday, the Bench allowed Abraham Levey, of the Red Cross, at the corner of Kent and Druitt streets, to remove his license to a house at the corner of Brown Bear-lane and George-street.

POLICE COURT BUSINESS.—There were twenty-two cases on the lists; eight of them for drunkenness, namely, three women and five men—one woman was admonished and discharged, two men paid 11s. each, two others for not paying 5s. were sent to the stocks for two hours, one man and a woman were ordered to pay 11s. each, or go twenty-four hours to the cells; a female for a breach of the Vagrant Act was remanded till to-day. There were two cases on the summons list: Alexander M'Donald v. Maurice Winder, for an assault, paid a fine of 40s and 4s. 6d. costs; William Bushby v. Patrick Hogan, a blacksmith, for refusing to pay wages to the amount of 7s., was ordered to pay the same in ten days, with 4s. 6d. costs, or go to gaol for seven days. There were ten cases on the list of miscellaneous charges: two men for an assault, were remanded, on watch-house bail, till to-day; one woman for stealing wearing apparel, one man for an assault and robbery in a public-house, one for a breach of the peace, one for an assault, and a man for being drunk and assaulting constable Plunkett, were all discharged; one case for a breach of the peace was arranged out of Court; Elizabeth Mason, for an assault, was bound to the peace, at the instance of Ann Wilson, for twelve months, in £10 with sureties in £5 each; Mary Dillon, for drunkenness and a breach of the Vagrant Act, was sent to gaol for two months. The Court adjourned at eleven till nine o'clock to-day.

Mr. Salamon invites the attention of the trade and the public generally, to the sale of elegant fine gold jewellery, plated ware, and other fancy articles, at his rooms, this day, comprising a fashionable selection, just landed, ex Abel Gower, and which will be sold unreservedly, in pursuance of the importer's instructions.—Communicated.

71 ALLOTMENTS AT CAMPERDOWN.—We are requested by Mr. Mort to call the particular attention of all classes of the community, to his sale of 71 allotments of land at Camperdown, to take place upon the ground, immediately beyond the New Toll-bar, this day, at twelve o'clock. Upon reference to our advertising columns, it will be found that the terms are exceedingly liberal. Some of the allotments have good dwellings upon them. A lunch will be provided.—Communicated.

ANOTHER DEATH BY BURNING.—INQUEST.—Yesterday evening, a coroner's inquisition took place in the house of Mr. John William Wood, at the Glebe, on the body of Eliza Ludbrook, aged thirty months, then lying dead on Mr. Wood's premises. The evidence adduced was as follows:—William Ludbrook deposed that he was the father of the deceased; about half-past eight o'clock on Wednesday morning, his attention was attracted to the screams of the deceased, proceeding from the kitchen; he and her mother pushed the door open when they saw her enveloped in flames; they pulled the clothes off her as quickly as possible, and extinguished the fire; she was afterwards carried to an apothecary's, in Parramatta-street, who dressed the wounds, and on returning home Dr. Cuthill was called in; at the time the child was burnt there was a small fire on the hearth; he had seen deceased about two minutes before she was burnt; he thought her clothes had ignited while she was playing with a little dog; she subsequently told him that her pinafore was the first part of her clothes that caught fire; she expired about 7 o'clock on Wednesday evening; he had no doubt but the burning occurred accidentally. Mr. Alexander Cuthill, surgeon, deposed, that he was called in at noon, on Wednesday, to see deceased, who had been severely burned, he applied several remedies, but the burnings were of so extensive a description, that no remedy could have saved the child's life. The jury found a verdict of died from injuries caused by being accidentally burned. The above is the fifth death from burning that has occurred in the same portion of the Sydney district within the last six days.

STEALING FROM THE ALBION WHARF.—Between Wednesday night and Thursday morning, a weighing beam, value £5, the property of Captain Stephens, was stolen from the Albion Wharf.

We are requested to direct the particular attention of saddlers, settlers, storekeepers, and others, to Mr. J. G. Cohen's sale, this day, at his rooms, of saddlery, &c., comprising one of the best assortments, almost every article used in the trade, and now mostly in demand. The sale will commence at eleven o'clock precisely: the whole will be sold without the least reserve.—Communicated.

WHEELS.—Mr. Fawcett begs to call the attention of coachmakers and others to his unreserved sale of cab, phaeton, gig, and cart wheels, of superior make and well seasoned, this day, at eleven o'clock precisely.—Communicated.

NEWS FROM THE INTERIOR.

(From our various Correspondents.)

PARRAMATTA.

THE MARKET.—An election for Commissioners for the Market-place, took place on Tuesday. The number of Commissioners to be elected was five, and for which there were eleven candidates, viz., Messrs. Taylor, M'Roberts, John Brown, Nash, Blakefield, Lowe, Withers, Pye, Howison, Lee, and Solomon; although the four last named can scarcely be called candidates, as they did not offer themselves, and as there was only polled for each a single vote, it is shrewdly suspected such was the proceeding of some waggish elector. Messrs. Hugh Taylor, M'Roberts, Brown, Nash, and Blakefield, were the successful candidates. By this election the inhabitants have attained a great benefit. For twelve months they have been without a market, and this loss was entailed upon them by a series of gross blunderings and inattention to the welfare of the town and district. In the first instance it was discovered that an omission had occurred in the calling at the proper time of an election of Commissioners, and those holding that office acted as such for many months beyond the period when they were legally out of office, and, consequently, all dues and tolls taken by them were illegally levied. On this discovery the Market was forthwith closed. A question then arose as to how it was to be re-opened. Whether or not it would be necessary to go through all the formula of establishing a new market as if one had never existed. In the mean time, some of the most spirited of the townsmen formed themselves into a Committee, and employed themselves in drawing up an amended Market Bill, to be submitted to the Legislative Council, as the present Act is wholly unfitted to the present state of the colony, and contains many provisions of an excessively tyrannical character. Just as the Committee had finished their labours, the Police Magistrate intimated, what certainly might as well have been got six months previously, and the town not been for at least that time without its market, that he had procured the opinion of the law officers of the Crown, and that he, being an ex officio Commissioner, had been all the time in office, and that, therefore, the market was still in existence, and hence the present election, which it is only a reasonable surmise would never have occurred, unless the townspeople had forced it, as it were, on the authority referred to The Committee's Market Bill has been kindly taken in hand by Mr. Nichols, who has promised to draw it for them, and proposes making it a Local Act. The improvements at present suggested on the old Act are many, and there is little doubt if the Legislature pass the measure, will be found to be highly beneficial.

NEEDLE-WORK.—A slight omission occurred in the notice of the specimen of needle-work executed by Miss Staff, (see the Sydney Morning Herald of Tuesday). The superintendent of the work is certainly deserving of notice, and also of considerable credit, and as the young lady whose work was so highly spoken of, with an amiable modesty, is inclined to consider more is due to the lady under whose immediate care the work was begun, progressed, and finished, than to herself, it is only just to notice that the lady to whom this merit is due is Mrs. Mills, of this town.

WOLLONGONG.

JULY 1.—A meeting of the landholders in the vicinity of the Parish Road from Wollongong to Sydney, via Bulli and Bottle Forest, and George's River, or as it is better known as the new line of road from Wollongong to Sydney, took place at the Court House, Wollongong, this day, for the purpose of electing trustees for the road. Captain Plunkett presided as chairman, and Dr. Cox and Mr. George Anderson, as assessors

After enquiring into the qualifications of parties who claimed a right to vote for trustees, the following gentlemen were proposed as proper persons to fulfil the office of trustees for the parish road alluded to. Proposed by Captain Westmacot, seconded by Mr. Collary, "That C. Smith, Esq, J.P., Mr. Edward Palmer, and Mr. Thomas Black, be appointed trustees." Again it was proposed by Mr. M. Farragher, seconded by his son, Mr. Thomas Farragher, "That Captain Plunkett, J.P., Mr. George Anderson, and George Cox,, M.D., be appointed trustees." There being six parties nominated, and only three of them required for trustees, the election was carried by votes with the following results:—For the three last named gentlemen thirteen; for the three former seven. Captain Plunkett, J P., George Cox, M.D., and Mr. George Anderson, were therefore duly elected as trustees for the Parish Road from Wollongong to Bulli.

It is to be hoped that this long neglected, but important road will soon be opened, and the weary traveller from Sydney will no longer be puzzled after travelling fifty miles, how to find his way from Bulli to Wollongong, at present it is a complete labyrinth, and the bewildered, fatigued, and anxious traveller of late has been compelled to return to Bulli for a night's lodging, although only eight miles from Wollongong, for want of a direct, well defined road.

The trustees, I believe, intend to run the line of road in that direction which is attended with the least expense, the most direct or shortest distance, and the driest soil.

Voyagers from the south, to wit, from Kiama, Shoalhaven, Jervis Bay, Ulladulla, &c., may soon proceed to Sydney on terra firma, instead of subjecting themselves to be tempest tossed in small vessels, without risk of having an aching heart by "hope deferred," by contrary winds, boisterous weather, &c.; at the same time the steamer offers its services for the conveyance of goods and chattels, and such parties as prefer travellidg à la bateau à vapeur.

BATHURST.

THE WEATHER.—On Saturday, the 20th ultimo, it commenced raining about 3 P.M., and continued throughout the day, and following night, coming down in steady gentle showers, and almost without intermission; on Sunday we had frequent showers until about three P.M., when it cleared off, the following night being clear starlight, and very severe frost. The rain on the mountains between this and Sydney must have been very heavy, as the mail up from Sydney did not reach Bathurst on Sunday until 5 P.M. it usually arrives about noon, this delay arose from the wretched state of the roads from the recent rain; during the last four nights we have had the severest frost during the present winter.

CORONER'S INQUESTS.—On the 21st ultimo, an inquest was held before J. Sutherland, Esq., at the Inn at the Rocks, about twelve miles from Bathurst, on the Wellington Road, on the body of a man named Thomas Sears, who had died suddenly on the previous day. It appeared that the deceased, who was in the employ of Mr. Andrew Kerr, had been unwell for some time, and was proceeding to Bathurst for the benefit of medical advice; on his arrival at the Rocks, he became unable to proceed, and died there on the night of Saturday. Dr. Mac[illegible], who attended the inquest, and held a post mortem examination, certified, that death arose from aneurism of the arch of the aorta, and hypertrophy of the heart. Verdict, died by the visitation of God.—On Sunday, 28th ultimo, an inquest was also held by the same gentlemen, at Summer Hill, on the road to Wellington, on the body of a man named James Moore. It appeared that the deceased, who was also in the employ of Mr. Kerr, had been ploughing on the day previous in a paddock, his master and a boy, who was driving the team, heard the deceased utter an exclamation, and saw him fall between the handles of the plough; he was removed to an adjacent hut, and almost immediately expired, having been speechless from the time of his falling. Verdict, died by the visitation of God.—On Monday, 29th, another inquest was held by the Coroner, at Guyong, also on the Wellington Road, on the body of a man named James Dell, who had died suddenly on the Saturday previous. It appeared that the deceased had fallen from a dray, on which he had been sitting, and in the fall had fractured his skull, which caused his death. [illegible] had been removed from Phillips's public-house, where the accident occurred, to another inn kept by M'Cabe, ten miles nearer Bathurst, with the view of procuring medical assistance; but he expired before any medical aid could be obtained, having remained speechless from the time of his fall, which was supposed to have arisen from a fit. Verdict, died by the visitation of God.—On Thursday, 2nd inst, an inquest was held in the township, on an infant named Margaret Granstern, aged eighteen months, who had died the previous night, having been seized with convulsions. Dr. Connell, who attended the Coroner, certified that death had arisen from natural causes —On Friday, 3rd instant, another inquest was held at the Fish River, on the body of Mary Curran, aged four years, who had died the previous day. It appeared that the deceased had been left in a hut with two other children, one seven, the other two years old, whilst the mother had gone to a paddock about a quarter of a mile distant, to assist her husband in clearing some wood off for ploughing; the deceased had got so near the fire, that her clothes became ignited, and she was so seriously burnt before assistance could be afforded, that she died from the injuries received on the day following the accident. Verdict, accidental death.

ALL SAINTS CHURCH.—We are much rejoiced to observe the rapid progress of this building during the past few weeks, the brick work has been carried high enough for roofing, and in about six months from the present time there is every reason to hope Divine service will be performed in this much needed building.

ORIGINAL CORRESPONDENCE.

SIR GEORGE AND THE ATTORNEY-GENERAL IN NEW CHARACTERS.

Mr. G—— said, it appeared to him that the condition imposed by the Government was an unreasonable one, as it was a condition beyond the power of the Committee to fulfil. It amounted to this, that unless the Rev. Mr. S—— and the Rev. Mr. L—— shook hands and were friends, the institution and the poor people hitherto relieved by it must suffer.—Report of Meeting of Committee of Maitland Hospital.

To the Editors of the Sydney Morning Herald.

GENTLEMEN,—The report of the meeting of the Committee of the Maitland Hospital, inserted in your paper of the 30th ultimo, presents the character of our worthy Governor in a new aspect, and discloses to view perhaps the very drollest essay of administrative wisdom which the history of this colony has yet afforded.

It appears that in Maitland an event has occurred quite unexampled in the colony since the benign star of Gipps has risen upon it. There has been "a difference." A difference!—and under the Government of Sir George Gipps!!—Rare and portentous event!!! The Governor has hastened to interpose in person, to wipe out this intrusive speck from the otherwise immaculate white of his administration. He has engaged in the good work of "pacificating," and performed it in a manner which is perfectly unique, and indicates a great and original genius. To accommodate this Maitland difference, he has withdrawn the Government grant from the Maitland Hospital.

In vain have the Committee entrusted with the management of that Institution represented that they are not responsible for this difference! In vain has His Excellency been entreated to consider that the innocent should not suffer for the guilty! In vain would the enfeebled and pain-racked patients plead that they are little disposed to quarrel. His Excellency is inexorable, he persists in blockading the hospital, draws round it in true engineering style the stern lines of his displeasure, cuts off all supplies, and pledges his vice-regal word that unless the town capitulates and peace is restored, the suffering may die unpitied, and the starving may perish unrelieved.

Seriously, Gentlemen, the Government should look at home. If similar conditions were proposed to Sir George himself,—if it was arranged that unless the head of the Executive accommodated his differences with the Legislative Council, unless he returned to amicable relations with the squatters, and unless he established an universal peace with all and sundry of the various parties and interests in the colony which have felt the point of his chivalrous lance, the supplies of his Government, including the vice-regal salary, would be stopped. Conceive the outcry that would arise from the treasury benches at the proposal. The servants of the Crown would be as much puzzled as ever was the redoubtable Dogberry to find a word descriptive of the guilt involved in so monstrous a conception It would be pronounced flat burglary, perjury, murder, and suicide, at the least. And yet it is on this vain plea that the poor and dying are to be deprived of their rights. But then we must acknowledge that the salaries of public officers are things sacred and intangible. They are very different persons indeed from the pauper inmates of an hospital, who have no one to represent them in the Councils of the colony.

The origin and nature of the differences are well understood by the Maitland public, and they know well to whom the blame should be attributed. But it matters not one straw who is right and who is wrong. Mr. G.—— has with true colonial sagacity announced the common-sense view of the subject. And to all plain right minded persons, who are accustomed in their unsophisticated hearts to confide in the rectitude and wisdom of the Government, this act of wanton and cruel injustice appears an inscrutable mystery.

But some clew to the mystery may be found in the following advertisement, published in the Maitland Mercury, 23rd May:—"Catholic Meeting.—A meeting of the Catholics of the Hunter River district will be held in the Catholic Chapel, West Maitland, on Monday, the 1st of June, to take into consideration 'the Minute' of His Excellency the Governor relative to the Maitland Hospital, as also the letter of Her Majesty's Attorney-General."

To the wise a hint is enough. Here the secret oozes out It is remarkable that this proposed meeting was never held.

I bear no malice to Sir George, and, as he is soon to leave our shores, do most sincerely wish him a pleasant voyage and a safe return to his native country, where I trust he will obtain a complete restoration of the health which he has lost in this colony. And as under the auspices of the Rev Dr. Gregory a subscription is now in progress to defray the expenses of placing his statue beside that of his illustrious predecessor, I would venture to suggest one line of the inscription.

"Sir George Gipps, Knt., &c., &c.

"HEAD PACIFICATOR OF NEW SOUTH WALES."

And if some colonial painter would undertake to represent at one view, and upon the same canvas, the visible circumstances of his departure, and the unseen but potent influences which will be abroad at that interesting moment, I would suggest a subject at once historical and emblematic. Let Port Jackson be seen spread out in its beauty under a bright sun and cloudless sky—let there be no ripple upon the glassy surface of its waters—let every wind be hushed, the very breezes chained for the occasion, to symbolise the great calm and quiet of the colony—let a gallant ship appear in the very centre of the scene, with Britain's pennon drooping at the helm—let boats crowded with mourners float around; and while Sir George is seen climbing the accommodation ladder, amidst the silence of the sorrow-stricken multitude, let the Pacificator cloak appear to fall from his ample shoulders, and descend upon the bending form of the Attorney-General, who stands weeping below. To complete and diversify the representation, the Demon of Discord might be shown on the north, driven in disappointment down the distant horizon, and carrying in his arms the Committee of the Maitland Hospital.

Hoping that you and your readers will appreciate the truthfulness of my allegory,

I have the honour to be, Gentlemen,

Your obedient servant,

A FRIEND OF THE POOR.

RAILROADS.

To the Editors of the Sydney Morning Herald.

GENTLEMEN,—Observing that a Mr. Robertson has lately constructed a railway model with centre rail, I think it due to myself to state, through the medium of your journal, that some months ago I submitted to a few gentlemen of the Provincial Committee of the Great Southern and Western Railway Company, certain designs for wooden rails, and the one most generally approved of involved the above principle, though differently applied.

Your insertion of this will much oblige,

Gentlemen,

Your obedient servant,

GOTHER K. MANN,

C.E.

Sydney, 8th July.

To the Editors of the Sydney Morning Herald.

GENTLEMEN,—The colonists of New South Wales feel most grateful for your leading article in yesterday's Herald, upon the unjust mode adopted by Sir George Gipps in having taken upon himself the unauthorized office of Judge, Counsel, and Jury, in most cases of grievances submitted for his Excellency's investigation; and as you have not instanced any case where the rights of individuals have been so totally disregarded by his Excellency, I shall mention one case of peculiar hardship, as coming within my own knowledge from practical experience. Prior to the departure of Sir Thomas Brisbane, a former Governor of this colony, I was entitled to a town allotment, and applied to Major Goulburn, the then Colonial Secretary, to have one pointed out, but the sudden departure of Sir Thomas, and afterwards of Major Goulburn, prevented a grant being made out of an acre allotment in Elizabeth Bay, which I had selected, and which had been approved of by the Governor. Both before and after the departure of Sir Thomas Brisbane, and also of Major Goulburn, from this colony, application was made to Mr. M'Leay, the successor of Major Goulburn as Colonial Secretary, to carry out the promise which had been made by Sir Thomas Brisbane, and which he promised both myself and Major Goulburn to do. Thus matters remained for some time, until at length I discovered that the very land in Elizabeth Bay which I had selected, had, with the remainder of Elizabeth Bay, been granted by Governor Darling to Mr. M'Leay, in the very face of the promise which had been made to me both by Mr. M'Leay and Sir Thomas Brisbane. For years, and during the whole period of Sir Richard Bourke's Government, I used every exertion to get my grievance redressed, and, as a final struggle with the colonial authorities, I memorialized His Excellency Sir George Gipps, with a view to have my claim investigated; to this memorial a very prompt reply was returned. He, Sir George Gipps, had looked over his instructions, and found he was not authorised to interfere in any grievances of the sort. This answer I enclosed in a memorial to the Chancellor of the Exchequer, with a hope of getting, through him, my case laid before Lord Stanley, and I was fortunate in this respect: for within a very short period I received a letter from the Chancellor himself, intimating that Lord Stanley had forwarded a despatch to Sir George Gipps to have my claim investigated; and after waiting for about seven months after its arrival, Sir George acknowledged he had received it; but that he would not give me a copy of it, or a copy of his reply to Lord Stanley, nor would he investigate my claim. Thus the matter rests, and if I am not more fortunate with Sir Charles Fitzroy than I have been with Sir George Gipps, I shall be compelled to abandon my claim, and give up all hope of justice being done to me, unless the Legislative Council take it up.

Yours, respectfully,

WM. CAPE.

O'Connell-street, July 6.

To the Editors of the Sydney Morning Herald.

GENTLEMEN,—Before this reaches you, you will have received the details of the recent events and movements here, and at the Leeward Islands, but I may just recall the leading facts to your recollection. At Borabora, the people have been insulted and their cottages and gardens destroyed, and 300 dollars levied; and the result is, that the French garrison there, and the malcontent natives, have been driven off the island. The missionary's property has also been injured and himself and family in danger. At Huahine, Captain Bonard has destroyed many unoffending cocoanut, breadfruit, and orange trees, and cottages, &c., but in four successive attacks on the native strong-hold he has not only completely failed, but had a large majority of his troops and sailors killed or disabled. He is just come back hither, confessedly "well beaten" He brings, as a prisoner, Mr. Barff's black horse.

While these events have been transpiring to the leeward, there has been a good deal of skirmishing here, and in all cases the advantage has been with the natives You will not therefore wonder that all the French forces have been withdrawn from the leeward, that the blockade of Raiatea is withdrawn, and that there is again a tacit suspension of hostilities. These events, painful as they are, have not only compelled the admission that these are a brave people, but they have undone all the Governor imagined was done, relative the conciliation of part of the natives—all the able men have again joined the camps.

The French have possession of the harbour, and the little island within it, (on which are crowded all who have rendered themselves most obnoxious to the natives, such as Captain Henry, A D., and the like,) and about two miles long by one broad on shore. They have also a block-house and some fifty men at Point Venus; but the natives occupy a position between that and Papeite. These are the boasted possessions in Polynesia, which have cost France already about 1000 men, and six millions of francs per annum, for the Marquesas we hear are virtually abandoned.

But although France has "paid so dear for her whistle" she may still for a long time harrass, and kill, and destroy, unless the friends of the islanders be active—perseveringly active. Let them not conclude, "it is of no use. Public opinion in France has changed, and is changing, and the British Government cannot but pay some respect to the just and re-iterated appeals made to it on the subject. Let them, therefore, without delay, take advantage of these fresh atrocities, to remonstrate and petition, nor rest until "justice to Tahiti" shall be done.

I remain, gentlemen,

Your obedient servant,

A FRIEND OF TAHITI.

Tahiti, April 28, 1846.

UPOLU, SAMOAN GROUP.

WE have recently arrived at this beautiful island, which absolutely revels in the wanton luxuriance of its vegetation. We have seen nothing like it elsewhere, and thousands and tens of thousands of fruitful acres teem forth their abundance but to decay. The harbour of Apia has always hitherto been considered the best harbour of the Navigator Group, but there is another fifteen or twenty miles to windward of it called Saluafata, larger and equally safe, but they both lie open to the north-west gales, and are not so well protected by reefs as are the harbours of the Georgian and Society Isles. According to a rough estimation, the population of the Navigator Group amounts to between 50 and 60,000 inhabitants; there is room for one hundred times as many more. We were introduced to Mr. Pritchard, H.B.M.'s Consul for the Navigators, and as some particulars relative to the present position of this much abused man may prove of interest to your readers, we venture to intrude them upon your notice.

We dare say that Mr. Pritchard's expulsion from the island of Tahiti is yet fresh in the memory of the public; popular indignation was very strong on the occasion, but the conciliating policy of Ministers induced them to hush matters up, and Mr. Pritchard was hurried from England in almost as hasty a way as he had been expelled from Tahiti, appointed Consul for the Navigator Islands, with a promise that his grievances should be looked into, and full indemnification procured him for his sufferings and losses; as yet the French have not advanced one farthing on his account, and they appear to take a delight in mocking at his claims.

H.M.S Daphne, Captain Onslow, conveyed Mr. Pritchard to his destination, and this appears to have been the amount of what was done for him. Tutuila was the first island they made, but as Pangopango Bay (its only good harbour) is not at all times easy of egress, it is not much visited by shipping, and consequently not a fit station for a British Consul. Captain Onslow does not appear to have been much pleased with his task, and was dissatisfied with all around him.

From Tutuila the Daphne came on to Upolu, and brought up in this harbour (Apia), the place fixed upon for Mr Pritchard's residence; as Captain Onslow did not contemplate a longer stay than twenty-four hours, Mr. Pritchard requested to be set on shore immediately, that he might adopt some measures for the protection of his property. Captain Onslow, to confer as much dignity on the representative of Majesty as he possibly could, sent him ashore in the dingy, pulled by two boys—the friends of order and good government were much shocked at this proceeding, whilst their enemies were elated. Mr. Pritchard toiled till the afternoon in landing his goods, and was then told by the commanding officer (Captain Onslow being absent from the ship), that he had orders to salute him; accordingly he was saluted, and thus commenced and terminated the august ceremony of installing H.B.M.'s Representative at the Navigators. We will refer our readers to the U.S. exploring expedition for a very different account of the way in which they installed their Consul. A general meeting of the Chiefs was convened, and on the day appointed for the ceremony, Commodore Wilkes, attended by as many officers as could be spared from the squadron, presented Mr. John Williams (son of the lamented missionary who lost his life at Eromanga) to the assembled chiefs, who gladly received him; the nature of his office was explained, and regulations were entered into for mutual redress and protection. Poor Mr. Pritchard, sent ashore as if in mockery of his office, unable to talk the language, and without a place to shelter his head, was glad to find refuge any where. Mr. Williams enacted the kind Samaritan, and received and hospitably entertained Mr. Pritchard, his wife, and child, for eight months. It is ten months since Mr. Pritchard's installation, and he has only just succeeded in leasing a small piece of land whereon to erect a house. At this time he is living in a native hut, partly open at the sides to serve for windows, and divided into two rooms by the aid of a lattice work of sticks and native cloth. The reckless set—deserters from ships and others, friends of misrule, living in utter abandonment amongst the heathen,—gave out that Mr. Pritchard was the cause of all the troubles in Tahiti, and that he had now come to the Navigators to cause similar troubles to fall upon them. The natives in consequence would not lease him or sell him an inch of land. We believe the small piece he has at length succeeded in leasing is obtained from a white man. We do not know a situation more to be pitied than Mr. Pritchard's. For upwards of twenty years he was the leading member in a sphere of great usefulness; now he is a nonentity—banished from the scene of his usefulness, and his privacy is subject to be intruded on at all hours by the lowest of the low, who enter familiarly into his presence, and seat themselves, whilst he stands, to bargain with them the price of labour, or of food necessary for existence; but the enduring patience with which Mr. Pritchard meets his reverses, extorts sympathy and respect even from some of these rude beings. The Tahitians with whom Mr. Pritchard travelled for so many years, are, in consequence of their long communion with the English, a highly civilised race when compared with the Samoans, who are only just emerging from barbarism. The Tahitians have shipwrights, house carpenters, blacksmiths, and other artificers amongst them; and their women are generally acquainted with all the domestic duties of civilized life. Too much praise cannot be accorded to the labourers in the Christian mission at the Samoas; but they have difficulties to contend with almost insurmountable. Their labours are greatly retarded by the vicious example of men of their own colour (escaped convicts and deserters) show to the natives, who, such is the proneness of our nature to sin, are only too glad to cast these examples in the teeth of the missionaries when they attempt to convert them from their evil ways; and the government of the respective islands is unlike that of the islands of the Georgian and Society group. With the latter every island has its head chief or sovereign; but the islands of the Navigator or Samoan group, are divided into countless chieftainships, every chief of a petty district being fiercely jealous of his rights, and ready with the club and spear to resent any insult offered to his dignity. Feuds and bloodshed amongst them are too common to attract particular notice, although the missionaries have certainly done much to restrain strife. We were present at one meeting of the natives, where one party humbled itself towards the other, and made a present of mats (the money of the country) as an atonement for injurious language. In earlier times this probably would have resulted in blood. It is pleasing to witness the behaviour of those who have embraced the Christian cause; their meetings on the Sabbath day, to hear the word of life, would put to blush many of the congregations in civilised Europe. When we attended, the presence of foreign strangers did not appear to distract their attention; no idle curiosity seemed to govern them, and their attitude was that of respectful devotion.

Mr. Mills, the missionary resident at Apia, has adopted the excellent plan of delivering a lecture in the morning, and of examining his hearers upon it in the afternoon; and he assures us that the retentiveness of their memories is surprising, and evinces the sincerity of their attention. We went to an evening service at a chapel a few miles distant from Apia, when a native of Samoa was the officiating minister; he read the prayers, and delivered an extemporaneous discourse, which we are told was exceedingly good. Much has been done, but much remains to do; many sheep have been brought into the fold, but by far the greater number of the inhabitants remain in a state of darkness. The heathen natives may be known from the others by their wilder appearance, and from their having less regard to the decent concealment of their nakedness; although the greater portion of the natives go more than half naked—a girdle of green leaves which descend to the middle of the thigh, being their chief dress, except upon the Sabbath, when they who attend the Church put on the best clothing in their possession. It would take years for Mr. Pritchard, who is well advanced in life, to possess any influence amongst this people; his office as Consul rarely troubles him; and a more mortifying position for an active-minded man, cannot well be conceived. Instead of enjoying the fruit of his labours, and finding himself surrounded in his declining years by an affectionate people, whose advancement in the scale of civilization he had aided, he is rendered an outcast from the scene of his exertions; and with every vessel from the fondly remembered isle, he is filled with grief and consternation, by hearing of continually renewed attempts on the part of the French to subdue or exterminate the race endeared to him as his own children.

To the Editors of the Sydney Morning Herald.

GENTLEMEN,—Allow me to correct an error or two that appeared in the article headed "Count Strzelecki," in your journal of the 4th instant. Instead of the fossil fish therein alluded to, as being found in the Newcastle coal basin, being that "of a sauriod fish of the Boney POPE kind," it should have been of a sauroid fish of the Boney PIKE kind: for, although the present Pope, being rather an aged gentleman, may therefore be presumed to be by this time rather boney, and for aught we know, an odd fish withal, I am sure that neither you nor I intended here to cast any reflections upon His Holiness. * "Agillaria also in a former part of that communication should have been written "Sigillaria." Since also Mr. Wilton first penned the article upon "the Fossil Woods at Newcastle," &c., &c., copied into your journal of the 4th instant, he has ascertained the existence of a species of Podo Carpus, one of the Coniferæ, growing amongst the thick brush on the islands of the Hunter, resembling the Pine of Illawarra. By-the-by, while talking about Fish, I dare say, Gentlemen, you may remember hearing, when in England, of a shower of snails one time, and of a shower of fishes (though not fossil ones) at another time raining down, (as an honest Hibernian would say,) upon the sward. Well—the good folks of Newcastle were visited, on Saturday last, the 4th instant, between four and five o'clock in the afternoon, with a shower of burnt grass, wafted by a northerly current from a bush fire on one of the islands of the river Hunter, full five miles off. While crossing the harbour, I noticed thousands of these black pieces, some from 500 to 600 feet high, making their way to the southward. The town was literally strewed with them, and many must have been carried over it to seaward, and dropped upon the waters. We need not therefore wonder at the relations we have read of large showers of dust and ashes ejected from volcanic mountains of great height, projected into the lofty regions of the atmosphere, and carried by the winds to vast distances, when here, from so low a level as the valley of the Hunter, these light particles of burnt grass were carried up to so great an elevation, and borne along to such a distance from the immediate vicinity of their ignition.

71 ALLOTMENTS AT CAMPERDOWN.

Situated on the Cook's River Road, immediately beyond the New Toll Bar, adjoining the residence of the Right Worshipful the Mayor, and all plentifully supplied by artificial reservoirs, with

ABUNDANCE OF WATER.

TERMS—15 PER CENT. CASH DEPOSIT, AND THE RESIDUE MAY REMAIN ON MORTGAGE OF THE PROPERTY, FOR A TERM OF YEARS, AT THE LOW INTEREST OF SEVEN AND A HALF PER CENT. PER ANNUM.

MR. MORT
Is instructed by the manager and directors of the British Colonial Bank and Loan Company, to sell by public auction,
ON THE GROUND,
THIS DAY, THE 10TH DAY OF JULY,
At twelve o'clock precisely,

ALL that very valuable and rapidly improving property, being an extension of the township of Camperdown, situate on the Cooks' River road, immediately beyond the new Toll Bar, bounded by the residence of the Right Worshipful the Mayor on the east side, on the west by the road from Cook's River road to Wilson-street, and on the south by Wilson-street; subdivided into well planned allotments, varying from 28 to 40 feet in frontage, by a depth of 90 to 120 feet.

On Allotments 20 and 21, of section 1; there are

containing five rooms each, an out kitchen, stable, coach-house, &c., &c.; and at the rear of Lot 20, in front of the reserved road, there is also of four rooms, with some temporary erections let separately.

Upon Lot 8, section 3, there is also kitchen, store, shed, &c.

All these are securely fenced, and each has alloted to it sufficient land for a garden.

Upon this property are

constructed by the former proprietor at great expense, which always contain an abundance of pure water, and are rendered easy of access to all the allotments (as will be seen on reference to the plan) by Water-street being made to take a circle round them.

☞ In laying out the allotments, the wants of the working man have been strictly considered, each one having sufficient frontage for a cottage, with a good depth for a garden in the rear. Many of the lots have healthy fruit trees now upon them.

Intending purchasers are referred to the auctioneer for any further particulars, or to the Loan Company's office, where a plan of the property may be seen.

A LUNCH WILL BE PROVIDED. 695
